March Mumblings

And another month goes by – I wonder where the year is going already?

March is the month of our AGM and the date is the 10th. If you are able to attend, please do otherwise please ensure your proxy form is handed in to the Office well in time. We welcome your vote and your comments.

Classes are now well and truly under way for the year. Some of our classes are bursting and some would welcome you with open arms. Please have a look either in the booklet or online to see if something takes your interest. If you know anyone wanting to learn computers, suggest they come to our Be Connected classes held on a Monday. Registrations are welcome.

Our garden is a wonderful work in progress and Michael is doing a superb job. We hope to set up a gardening club in the future to nurture our love of plants and maybe grow some herbs for our consumption. Watch this space.

Also attached to my ponderings is a note from our newest addition to the classes here at KP.

From the beginning of March, we are welcoming the Writers and Poets Society here on a Saturday morning. I know they would welcome new members. Let me know if you would be interested.

After the AGM, I will be taking a short break for three weeks to do a little more travelling. U3A Frankston will be in very good hands in my absence with the Committee totally in control!

We have some exciting guest speakers coming up and look forward to seeing you at them. The Beekeeping presentation with scones afterwards was a great success. Chris will be back later in the year with an update on our busy buzzy friends

We welcome ideas from you all for classes and above all for venues. The enthusiasm for U3A is growing and we are expanding rapidly.

Thank you again for your support of U3A Frankston
